10 Palestinians killed, dozens shot in raid

Israeli troops killed 10 Palestinians today in a raid on the occupied West Bank city of Nablus, while more than 80 suffered gunshot wounds, the Palestinian health ministry said.

The Israeli army said the raid targeted militant suspects "in a hideout apartment" accused of shootings in the West Bank, and that its troops came under live fire but suffered no casualties. Top Palestinian official Hussein Al Sheikh decried the incursion as a 'massacre' and called for 'international protection for our people';

The Israeli military said that all three targeted suspects in the Nablus operation were incutralised; either while fleeing the building or in an "exchange of fire".

"Armed suspects shot heavily toward the forces, who responded with live fire," said the military, adding that rocks, explosive devices and Molotov cocktails were thrown at the troops.

The Palestinian health ministry said those killed "as a result of the occupation's aggression on Nablus" were aged between 16 and 72.

Ex-IS bride loses appeal to restore her UK citizenship

London, February 22

A British woman whose UK citizenship was revoked after she travelled to Syria to join the Islamic State group has lost an appeal in her fight to restore her citizenship.
Shamima Begum, now 23, was 15 years old when she and two other girls from London joined the externist group in February 2015. Authorities withdrew her British citizenship on national security grounds soon after she surfaced in a Syrian refugee camp in 2019.

security grounds soon after she surfaced in a Syrian refujeec camp in 2019. The Special Immigration Appeals Commission, a tribunal which hears challenges to decisions to remove someone's British citizenship on national security grounds, ruled there was a 'credible suspicion' that Begun was trafficked to Syria for 'sexual exploitation.' It said there also were 'arguable breaches of duty' by state bodies in allowing her to mavel to the country. But Judge Robert Jassiff cieru' for Begun to win the argument that the deptivation of her British citizenship failed to respect her human rights. Given that she remains in Syria, UK authorities are not compelled to facilitate her return, the judge said.

Begum had challenged the action of Sajid Javid, the UK's home secretary at the time, arguing that it left her stateless and that she should have been treated as a child trafficking victim, not a security risk.

The British government claimed she could seek a Bangladeshi passport based on family ties.

But Begum's family argued that she was from the UK and never held a Bangladeshi passport deshi passport.

Committee says 305 nominated for 2023 Nobel Peace Prize

Copenhagen, February 22

Copenhagen, February 22

The Norwegian Nobel Committee said today that 305 candidates were nominated for the 2023 Nobel Peace Prize by the February 1 deadline, the lowest number in four years. The names of the 212 individuals and 93 organisations were not released, in accordance with committee practice.

The Oslo-based organisation said there was a decrease from last year's 343 candidates, and that it was the lowest number of registered candidates since 2019. Over the last eight years, the number of annual candidates has exceeded 300, it said, adding that the provisional record was set in 2016 with 376.

"Who nominates, and who is nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize is a secret for 50 years," the very secretive board in Oslo said in a statement. A vast group of people can submit a nomination for the prize: heads of state or policitains serving in order the proposer. In the order of the proposer of the proposer.

Norwegian lawmaker Lan Marie Nguyen Berg of the Green Party nominated two climate activists, Greta Thunberg of Sweden and Ugandan Vanessa Makate, "for enormous mobilisation" in their continents.

Thunberg has been nominated four times, includ-nether the prize went to human rights activists from Ukraine, Belarus and Russia.

The 2022 award was a strong rebuke to Russian President Vladimir Putin, whose invasion of Ukraine reputured decades of nearly uninterrupted peace in Europe, and to the Belarusian president, his authoritarian ally.

On Feb. 1, the director of the Peace Research Institute Oals Henrik Urrlat shortlisted human rights ac-

On Feb. 1, the director of the Peace Research Institute Oslo, Henrik Urdal, shortlisted human rights activists as his favourites to win the 2023 award. They included Narges Mohammadi, an Iranian human rights activist and Mabbouba Seraj, an Alghan women's rights activist. Myammar's representative to the United Nations, Kyaw Moe Tiur, and the Netherlands-based International Court of Justice, among others. Urdal noted that 2023 was the 75th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and that his list reflects a timely and worthy focus on human rights defenders and activists." The Nobel Peace Prize is handed out in the Norwegian capital, Oslo, while the other awards are presented in Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, in line with prize founder Alfred Nobel's wishes. Five Nobel Prizes were established under the terms of Nobel's will. A sixth, for economics, was created by the Central Bank of Sweden in 1986 as a memorial to Nobel. The winners will be announced in early Cutober.
